El alfabeto, o abecedario de una lengua o idioma es el conjunto ordenado de sus letras. Es también la agrupación, con un orden determinado, de las grafías utilizadas para representar el lenguaje que sirve de sistema de comunicación.

El término alfabeto procede del griego, derivado de las dos primeras letras griegas (alfa,  $\alpha$ ) y (beta,  $\beta$ ), derivadas a su vez de las letras fenicias 'alp y bêt, que significaban «buey» y «casa» respectivamente. El alfabeto griego es una adaptación del alfabeto fenicio, que también dio lugar entre otros al hebreo y al árabe. Por su parte, el término abecedario proviene del latín tardío abecedārium, también derivado del nombre de las primeras letras, en este caso cuatro: a (a), b (be), c (ce) y d (de)
