The alphabet of a language is the ordered set of letters. It is also the group with a particular order, of the graphs used to represent the language that serves as a communication system.

The term comes from the Greek alphabet, derived from the first two Greek letters (alpha, α) and (beta, β), derived in turn from the Phoenician letters ' alp and BET, which meant "ox" and "house" respectively. The Greek alphabet is adapted from the Phoenician alphabet, which also led among others to Hebrew and Arabic. Meanwhile, the term derived from the Latin alphabet Abecedarium late, also derived from the first letters of the name, in this case four: a (a) b (Be) c (ec) and d (de)
